Additional Ransom Money Found Cleverly Hidden in Garage at His Home Today

Bills Had Been Rolled Into Tight Wads and Stuffed Into Holes Bored in a Two-by-Four; Identified by Grand Jury

BULLETIN
New York, Sept. 26—(AP)—A Bronx county grand jury today indicted Bruno Richard Hauptmann on a charge of extortion as the alleged receiver of the $50,000 Lindbergh ransom.

The indictment was handed up to Supreme Court Justice Charles B. McLaughlin in the Bronx county building in less than an hour after the grand jury had returned from a luncheon recess.

At the morning session, the grand jury had heard from Col. Charles A. Lindbergh his own story of his futile attempt to ransom his kidnapped son two and a half years ago by the payment of $50,000 through Dr. John F. Condon, the "Jafsie" of the negotiations, to a supposed emissary of the kidnapers in St. Raymond's cemetery in the Bronx.

BULLETIN
New York, Sept. 26—(AP)—Assistant Chief Inspector John J. Sullivan today called instructions to Detective Arthur Johnson, who is in Germany investigating the case of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, to proceed to a designated city there and await developments momentarily expected.

New York, Sept. 26—(AP)—Additional Lindbergh ransom money was found today in the garage of Bruno Richard Hauptmann as Col. Charles A. Lindbergh was before a Bronx county grand jury telling his story of the futile negotiations to ransom his kidnapped son.

The money, totaling $840, was found rolled and stuffed into five small holes bored into a two-foot, two-by-four.

In a hollowed-out space below the holes, police found a small automatic pistol, fully loaded and apparently of German make. It would fit in the palm of a man's hand and bore the inscription "Liliput Kal-425."

Denies There's More
Hauptmann denied that there was any more money on the premises. He said the prisoner told him that even "if you tear down the house you'll find no more money."

The district attorney, however, said that the search of the place was continuing, pointing out that after the $13,750 was found in the garage last week Hauptmann said there was no more on the place.

Hauptmann had explained his possession of the $13,750 with a statement that it was entrusted to him by Isidor Fisch, with whom he formerly was associated in the fur business, when Fisch went to Germany last year. Fisch died abroad last March.

Bills in Phonograph
A phonograph was taken from the Hauptmann home to the district attorney's office today and C. Brodie, chief clerk to the Bronx district attorney, said he believed two $20 ransom notes had been found in it.

While these dramatic developments were taking place at the Hauptmann home, Col. Lindbergh appeared before the grand jury to tell his story of the negotiations for the ransom of his kidnapped son two and a half years ago. He was in the county building thirty minutes and it was reported that he actually spent seventeen minutes before the grand jury.

Hauptmann "The Man"
United States Attorney General Homer S. Cummings conferred on the kidnap case in New York today with Francis X. Fay, head of the New York bureau of investigation of the department of justice. In answer to an inquiry as to whether he believed Hauptmann was "the right man," he said he "didn't know anybody" doubted it.

Cummings said he found results of the kidnap investigation gratifying, and reiterated a previous statement that the keynote of success in the case was the cooperation between the three agencies conducting the investigation—federal authorities and state and local police.

Asked whether the department of justice was seeking others as alleged accomplices of Hauptmann, Cummings declined to comment. But he did say that the federal government was "continuing its investigations."

First Break in Calm
Meanwhile, despite earlier reports from the Bronx county sheriff's office that Hauptmann had

COMMON SENSE AND FUN MAKE UP DISCOURSE

Farm Folks Assured of Beneficial Treat Here Saturday

A rare treat—a fun and amusement, coupled with sound common sense about farming and its future, awaits those who hear Charles F. Collisson, farm editor of the Minneapolis Tribune, in his free lecture at the high school at 2 Saturday afternoon.

This lecture is sponsored by The Dixon Evening Telegraph and is made possible through the courtesy and cooperation of F. E. Murphy, publisher of the Minneapolis Tribune, the Dixon board of education and Prof. J. N. Weiss, teacher of vocational agriculture, who will preside during the afternoon.

Every farmer, man and woman, in Lee and adjoining counties is invited and urged to hear Mr. Collisson.

This speaker is popular with farmers because he does not advise them what to do, or try to tell them how to farm. On the contrary, he draws from a rich fund of observations made during years of traveling thousands of miles, all over the country, studying the various methods of successful farmers themselves.

These experiences are broadcast to audiences of business men and farmers all over the United States, and are made the subject of full-page, illustrated feature stories in the Sunday Tribune. Both his writings and speeches are spiced with sparkling wit and apt sallies, good stories well told, and amusing anecdotes, which please and hold his audiences.

Makes Subject Interesting
"Collisson has the happy faculty," wrote an eastern editor, "of taking a dry subject, or a set of statistics, and making it absorbingly interesting and entertaining. He is a true evangelist of the gospel of good farming, who knows how to get his message across in fine style."

Audiences of farmers and business men alike hear him with enthusiasm and clamor for more.

The Advertising Club News of New York said: "Time and again Mr. Collisson electrified his audience with startling statements interspersed with an amazing number of charts that failed to be tiresome because of the rapidity with which he exhibits them, bringing his points home with lightning-like clearness and interspersing them with a rich humor that drew genuine outbursts of laughter. Your editor has heard this speech of Mr. Collisson four times and each time it gets better. And the first time it was better than good."

Another New York editor wrote: "So Mr. Collisson left us with The Cow, the Sow and the Little Red Hen as the prosperity trio of the northwest. The great American bird is not the eagle, but the hen," said Mr. Collisson, who added one of his rich witticisms by hoping that her sun may never set."

The Springfield, Mass. Breeze said: "F. E. Murphy, publisher of the Minneapolis Tribune, who sponsored the Minnesota plan spoke first, for about 20 minutes. Then he introduced Mr. Collisson and likened him to Floyd Gibbons. Well, the comparison was certainly to the point, because he sure did have a magnetic personality, also a splendid speaking voice. With the aid of various charts he gave facts and statistics that kept us almost in daze, incidentally adding witty remarks about the various animals of the west, the cow, the sow and the little red hen. Surely everybody left the meeting last week with a smile on his face."

Audience Sat Up
According to the Washington Post, "A Minneapolis farm editor made a New York Chamber of Commerce dinner audience sit up and listen with respectful and envious attention with his striking notables."

Giant New Liner Christened Queen Mary at Launching
Clydebank, Glasgow, Scotland, Sept. 26—(AP)—Queen Mary today christened the giant new Cunard-White star liner 534 the "Queen Mary" as the great ship started down the ways to the water.

The Queen Mary, which Great Britain believes will be the queen of the seas, slid down successfully in a perfect launching.

The choice of the name of a living queen for a christening was most unusual. Right up until the moment of the actual christening, no one had announced what the great ship's name was to be and the suggestion "Britannia" ruled a favorite.

The launching followed a short speech by King George. The Prince of Wales was present. So was Ambassador Robert W. Bingham of the United States, Mrs. Bingham, and a multitude of other notables.

Owen Clymer, Dixon Resident Many Years, Dean of Commercial Salesmen, Died Last Eve at Lincoln, Neb.

Owen Clymer, resident of Dixon for over thirty years and until his retirement after the death of his wife early this year, dean of traveling salesmen for McNeil-Higgins & Co., Chicago, passed away last evening at Lincoln, Neb., where he had gone with his sister-in-law in April, that they might pass the autumn of their lives among the comforts of the Tabitha Home, maintained by the Lutheran church.

The body will be brought to Dixon by Mr. Clymer's daughter, Miss Julia, who left for Lincoln from her home in Chicago at once on receiving word of his passing, and funeral services will be held at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning at St. Paul's Lutheran church, of which he was a devout and active member. A service will be held in the family cemetery at Foreston, where Mr. Clymer resided until he moved to Dixon in 1900.

News of his death will bring sincere sorrow to countless friends in Dixon and in the territory which he used to travel. He was an outstanding, upright citizen, whose kindness, charity and cheerfulness were known wherever he went.

COMPLETION OF DIXON AIRPORT IS IN PROSPECT

Fine Progress Noted on PWA Project East of City

Improvements at the Dixon Municipal airport have reached a stage where the rapid completion of the project is in prospect. During the past ten days workmen have completed pouring the cement floor in the huge hangar and are now making ready to pour the warming up platform just south of the hangar. The excavation work is almost completed and, weather permitting, the cement will be poured this week.

Approximately one hundred unemployed of Dixon are working on the airport project. The work of placing approximately ten miles of tile in the field is nearing completion rapidly. The landscaping work was started this week with a force of men working under the supervision of Louis Knick. Low places bordering on the Lincoln Highway are being filled and prepared for the planting of shrubbery this fall.

The entire field has been mowed and workmen were today burning the weeds and cleaning up. Tractors and graders have started work leveling the field and filling in ditches and ravines. At the present progress the field is expected to be in excellent condition by the date of the official dedication on Sunday, Oct. 28.

NEW SET-UP IN NRA TO FOLLOW HUGH S. JOHNSON

General Resigned as Administrator of Blue Eagle Laws

Washington, Sept. 26—(AP)—President Roosevelt said today upon his return to the White House he would take up immediately—probably late today—the questions of NRA reorganization and the protest from textile strikers of discrimination by employers.

He did not refer to his letter of last night accepting the resignation of Hugh S. Johnson as recovery administrator, which he had accepted.

The President emphasized again that the reorganization of NRA would be of an evolutionary nature and that changes would be made from time to time on the basis of trial and experiment.

Asked about the questions submitted to him by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, the President said he did not have time to answer all questionnaires put to him by various organizations. He said that in reading the questions of the Chamber of Commerce he was reminded of the lawyer who puts the question in the form:

"Have you stopped beating your wife?"

Won't Assure C. of C.
Johnson stepped out last night to take his place in the history books. Cordially, he wrote to Roosevelt at Hyde Park that with the reorganization of NRA his job would be "superfluous."

Calling him "Dear Hugh" and praising his services hitherto, Roosevelt accepted the resignation, effective October 15. Both letters spoke of "new duties" for Johnson in the new deal in the future.

The President returned to Washington today with plans for a new NRA setup. They call for important changes in the recovery unit's machinery and in the opinion of many observers, in its policies also.

Answer Awaited
What the "changes are industry, labor and consumers all over the United States are waiting to hear. There is every sign the President will announce them shortly.

The new setup has taken form in the midst of terrific pressures. Many business leaders have been demanding more of a hands-off policy. Labor chiefs, some of them crying for Johnson's scalp, have been seeking greater strength for workers, a 30-hour week and the right to initiate code changes; others have been denouncing "monopoly" and "price-fixing."

Only the broadest outlines so far have been hinted by Roosevelt. It is indicated that there will be one board to frame policies, another group of agents to do the actual administering, with judicial functions transferred probably to the justice department.

DETROIT CHILD FOUND DEAD ON 11th BIRTHDAY

Musician Sought for Murder of Girl in His Apartment

Detroit, Sept. 26—(AP)—Lillian Gallaher was found today, her eleventh birthday, apparently strangled to death and her body stuffed into a trunk—undoubtedly the victim of a degenerate, police said.

The trunk was in apartment 41 at 68 Warren avenue west, six blocks from the home where Lillian's parents had awaited her return since last Thursday, with forebodings that grew hourly.

The body was bound with a towel tied across the mouth as a gag. It was in an advanced state of decomposition and police said they could not ascertain definitely whether she had been criminally attacked—or even how she died—until a careful medical examination was made.

Occupant Musician
Police said the apartment was rented recently to a man who gave his name as M. W. Goodrich, and his occupation as a tram drummer. A grand piano in the room with the trunk, and many sheets of music scattered about the place lent credence to the theory that a musician was the last occupant.

A woman lived there with him, police quoted the apartment house janitor—Clyde Burgess—as saying, and a city-wide search for the couple was begun at once.

James E. McCarty, deputy superintendent of police, said the couple disappeared several days ago.

Lillian set out from her home last Thursday afternoon to sell chances on a punchboard, as a school benefit. When she did not return that evening, police were notified and a search was begun that grew in intensity, until today police started a block by block search of the entire city.

Radium Thief is Warned of Danger His Loot May Bring

Chicago, Sept. 26—(AP)—Authorities pressed a search for a thief today, to save him from the possible insanity or death his loot may bring him.

The stolen article is an innocent appearing aluminum tube containing $1,000 worth of radium, taken from a World's Fair radium exhibit last night.

Said Dr. Luther Gable, in charge of the exhibit:

"If he opens the capsule and gets it under his finger nails, he is likely to lose those fingers. If he gets it in his hair, it will cause him to lose his mind in a short time. Contact with the entire supply for any length of time might cause death."

Three Dixon Boys Taken Into Custody; One Said to Have Admitted Crime

Railway Spikes Placed in Frog Switch at North Approach of High Bridge Tuesday; Captured by Detectives

An attempt to wreck an Illinois Central train as it approached the high bridge over Rock river here, which if successful would have hurled the equipment and operators into the stream, was discovered yesterday morning by employees in the maintenance department and immediately reported to the headquarters offices at Freeport. New railroad spikes had been placed in a frog switch at the north end of the bridge which serves the side track for the Borden condenser and confectionery plants off the main line.

Special Agent W. E. Briggs and A. F. Hille, his assistant, came to Dixon yesterday afternoon to investigate and last evening at 5:30 had apprehended three boys who were said to have made signed confessions of the serious offense.

The trio after being rounded up and questioned by the railroad officials were taken to the county jail to be held until this morning. They are: Walter Imfeld, 15, and brother Leo, 13, and Raymond Buchanan, 14. The Imfeld brothers according to police records have been implicated in a number of offenses and only a few days ago were involved in the theft of three bicycles from north side homes, which they and a companion took to Freeport to dispose of and where they were apprehended.

Eight Spikes Found
Eight new railroad spikes were found at the scene of the attempt.

The frog is located about 50 feet north of the bridge and some of the spikes had to be chiseled out of the switch frog, so solidly were they forced between the rails by the weight of trains passing over them. All of the spikes were twisted and cut by the flanges of the wheels of the heavy locomotives and trains. The company special agents estimated that no less than three trains, one a passenger train, passed over the switch.

In the statement said to have been made to Special Agents Briggs and Hille last evening, Leo Imfeld was reported to have stated that he returned to the scene after dark Tuesday evening to ascertain whether any trains had been derailed and run into the river. Had the attempt proved successful it doubtless would have resulted in one of the worst wrecks on the Freeport-Clinton division of Illinois Central in years, that it did not was unexpected, other than that probably the first train to pass over the switch frog was pulled by one of the heavy locomotives, which twisted some of the spikes and pushed the others between the steel rails to a point below the rail level.

When Leo returned to the scene last evening with a companion to show the means that had been adopted in placing the spikes in the frog, the two railway special agents appeared and took them in custody.

Reports that a fireman on a train passing over the frog was thrown from his seat when the train passed over the frog were denied by the special agents here this morning. Had the attempt proved successful, trains going in either direction could have been thrown from the tracks and down the steep embankment or into the river, the railroad officials stated.

At a conference between State's Attorney Edward Jones and parents of the boys this morning it was decided to file informations in the county court this afternoon before Judge Leach. It was expected that delinquency proceedings would be started against the trio and that the Imfeld brothers would be sent to the state training school for boys at St. Charles with the probable paroling of the Buchanan boy.

Lindberghs Smile at Trouble

There wasn't any porter waiting to take charge of their bags when motor failure forced them to land their plane in a corn field near Woodward, Okla., so Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh himself carried their luggage to the home of Farmer Henry Altkens, who offered hospitality while the flyers waited for repairs. Ann Lindbergh's happy smile shows how lightly she takes misadventure in the air.

Jobless, He'll Drive to Riches

A jobless and penniless Birmingham, Ala., nonworker, James Steele, above, tinkers blithely with the old auto which he hopes will carry him to Mobile and a goodly share in the $200,000 estate of his rich, eccentric aunt. Steele, 53, married and father of two, applied to a relief agency for money to buy gasoline for his trip. If the estate of Mrs. Margaret Steele Cox is split among her nearest kin, Steele may get approximately $35,000.

COST OF RELIEF IN STATE DOUBLED IN A YEAR

Work in Illinois to Cost 12,178,927 Dollars in October

Chicago, Sept. 26—(AP)—Illinois will pay nearly twice as much for unemployment relief in October as it did a year ago.

This was disclosed yesterday when two members of the Illinois Emergency Relief Commission, the only ones present at a meeting, approved allocation of $12,178,927 for next month compared with $6,583,987 in October, 1933.

Robert L. Myers, chief statistician, said the increase was due to added tasks imposed upon the commission by the federal government, disastrous results of the recent drought, and increased unemployment.

Of the total, $11,344,676 is for actual unemployment relief, compared with $10,111,354 this month and $9,517,670 in August.

299,000 families for next month plan, the number of families on relief at 299,000, compared with 287,500 this month and 216,000 last October.

Myers said a strict comparison of cost now and a year ago was unfair, as the federal government has since shifted many of its functions on the commission.

R. J. Dunham, president of the commission, who was present with George Barr, Joliet, said next month's expenditures must come in the greatest part from the federal government.

Delay Appointment of Receiver for Middle West Firm

Chicago, Sept. 26—(AP)—Judge James H. Wilkerson again today delayed decision on the appointment of a permanent trustee for Middle West Utilities Company, the Insull holding unit.

Creditors and one group of stockholders sought the appointment of Daniel C. Green, acting trustee since June 24, but attorneys for various groups of common stockholders opposed him, charging that he was too closely associated with the previous management of the company.

Charges of collusion in the appointment of receivers have been made in the Middle West case.

Appointment of William J. Hagenah, utility expert, was urged by one group.

Judge Wilkerson did not indicate when he will announce his decision.

Silver Wedding Anniversary for Mr. and Mrs. Waite

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Waite of Polo were very pleasantly surprised on Sunday, Sept. 23rd, their silver wedding anniversary. When forty-one of Mrs. Waite's immediate relatives appeared at the Waite residence shortly after the Waites had arrived from church. Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Moats of Dixon, an uncle of Mr. Waite, and their immediate family, had planned a family picnic with the Waites not knowing of the anniversary surprise. The two groups not knowing each other's plans were much surprised, but fortunately, most everyone was acquainted and soon a very sumptuous dinner was spread on a long table in the yard, and the weather being ideal, everyone enjoyed every moment. The dinner was complete from fried chicken and salads to ice cream, and a three tiered wedding cake with miniature bride and groom. The date also marking the date of the son, Martin's birthday. He was remembered by gifts and best wishes and a lovely birthday cake. It surely was a day of surprises.

After dinner the mother of the bride presented the bride and bridegroom of 25 years with a purse of silver from the family. The remainder of the afternoon was spent in a social manner. Those present to help Mr. and Mrs. Waite and family, celebrate the occasion, and to wish them continued years of happiness were: Mrs. David Gilbert, mother of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Allen Wade and daughter, Nora; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Stauffer and family; Mr. and Mrs. Bert Stauffer and family; Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Davis and family; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Parks and family; Mr. and Mrs. David Wade; Mr. and Mrs. John Cunningham; all of Polo; Mrs. Martha Miller of Mt. Autumn Provides Fine Salads, Too

BY MARY E. DAGUE
NEA Service Staff Writer

Don't thing just because summer has gone its way into the limbo of nearly forgotten things that you must stop serving salad. Autumn offers materials as luscious for the salad maker's art as spring or summer. There are apples, for instance, ripening now to the perfect crisp, firm texture, juicy pears, tomatoes at the best, round, red and superbly-fleshed, celery, the new crop of nuts, turnips, cabbage, all to be used in endless succulent combinations.

In fact, here's an autumn salad that uses several of the lot. For it, take 2 ripe pears, 2 tart apples, 4 tablespoons minced candied ginger, 4 tablespoons diced celery, 2 tablespoons chopped walnut meats, 4 cups shredded cabbage, 1 tablespoon blanched and shredded almonds, 1-2 cup seeded Tokay grapes. Pare and dice pears. Dice apples without paring if you have those with bright red skins. Mix pears, apples, ginger, celery and walnut meats. Mix with French dressing and let stand on ice for 30 minutes. Shred cabbage very fine and let stand in cold water for 10 minutes. Drain and mix with almonds and enough mayonnaise to make moist. Make nests of cabbage on individual salad plates. Fill each nest with fruit mixture and garnish with seeded grapes.

Celery Salad
This is splendid dinner salad. Two cups shredded celery, 4 tablespoons shredded sweet red pepper, 2 tablespoons Roquefort cheese, 1 cup French dressing, 1 cup endive. Combine celery, olives and pepper. Mash cheese and combine with French dressing. Mix vegetables and serve on bed of endive.

Medley Salad
This salad depends on new turnips for its unusual flavor. Two medium sized white turnips, 1 cup shredded celery, 2 slices pineapple, 1 green pepper, 6 tablespoons oil, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 1 tablespoon grated horseradish, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, paprika. Pare turnips and boil in salted water to which a little lemon juice has been added. When tender drain and plunge into cold water. Drain and cut in cubes. Combine oil, lemon juice, horseradish, salt, pepper and paprika and pour over prepared turnips. Let stand on ice an hour or longer to chill. When ready to serve add celery, green pepper cut in threads and pineapple cut in small pieces. Serve on lettuce and garnish with maraschino cherries cut in halves.

Five hundred was played and all of the self-invited guests brought liberal quantities of food which was served at a late hour, and which concluded the pleasant surprise.

STATES MAY LEAD WAY TO GOOD GOVERNMENT.

A good many years ago, when the French economist de Tocqueville came over to see what sort of country the American people were making for themselves, he reported that the best thing about it was the fact that the states could serve as laboratories for experiments in government, which the nation as a whole was not yet ready to try.

Growing centralization of authority, coupled with an increasing standardization of manners and customs, has kept the states from doing very much of this laboratory work of late years. Now, however, it looks as if we were about ready to give it a try.

Ducking one's head to avoid stray bricks, one can begin by mentioning the possibility of Upton Sinclair's election in California. Whatever fears his complicated scheme for handling unemployment may arouse, it is at least pretty obvious that it is far better to have a new and possibly impractical stunt like that tested within the confines of one state than throughout the nation as a whole.

Then there is Oklahoma, where E. W. Marland—once an oil king, now a progressive experimenter—expects to become governor in January and to try out a vast $100-000,000 subsistence homestead project, with an auxiliary program for the use of many small manufacturing plants to relieve urban unemployment.

Programs like these, of Mr. Sinclair and Mr. Marland, may rank with the most wildly impractical ideas that the human race ever conceived. That, at this moment, is not the point.

The point is that our unemployment situation is rapidly becoming one of those progressively developing puzzles like the unbalanced budget which plagued Louis XVI of France. Louis, you may recall, fiddled around with this puzzle until it got out of hand, and he wound up under Dr. Guillotin's knife.

Since this problem is becoming so great a number of people are clamoring for a new method of approach to its solution. Such clamor inevitably leads to experimentation. And we are extremely fortunate that our political set-up permits us to experiment by states—to experiment, that is, on a small scale, without involving the nation as a whole.

The ability of the individual states to try out new methods of government may yet prove our salvation in this crisis.

UGLY WARFARE.

One of the ugliest little labor disputes this country has had all year seems to be the one which centers in the onion fields of Hardin county, Ohio. There has been long-continued violence, and much bitterness; and the latest development is the voting of an indictment, which charges pointing firearms and assault with intent to kill against Okey Odell, leader of the strikers.

Previously, a band of 30 or 40 "vigilantes" had kidnaped Odell, taken him to an isolated spot, beaten him, and warned him never to come back to the strike scene. Odell armed himself and came back; the indictment is the latest move.

All of this is an obvious reflection of a situation which anger and defiance have gone to undue lengths. Federal conciliators have made unsuccessful attempts to set things straight. It looks as if they ought to make another effort.
The "onion war," though small, is taking an ugly turn.

HOPEFUL FIGURES.

One comforting bit of business news is to be found in the Dun and Bradstreet tabulation of building permits in 215 leading American cities.

This tabulation shows a slight but definite upward trend in the building industry. A total of $34,000,000 worth of building was initiated in August, for instance. This figure represents a small increase over the figures for July—a rise of 1 1/2 per cent, to be exact; and that very small increase is significant when one recalls that there is usually a decline from July to August of about 9 per cent. Furthermore, the figures for August are 6.3 per cent above the figures for the same month in 1933.

One seems justified, then, in concluding that the building industry is beginning to revive. Unfortunately, the revival has a dismayingly long way to go. This figure for August, 1934, is less than a quarter of the figure for August, 1930. Even a small rise is something to be thankful for, but it will have to get a lot higher to do us very much good.

Living Our Everyday Lives

VANITY OF VANITY
Dr. Joseph Fort Newton

How vain we mortals are! Who is wholly proof against the soft voice of flattery? It is a universal human trait, or nearly so. Our humility is often inverted vanity.

Man is a show-off. Even the humblest love to be credited with gifts and graces beyond their merits, to be thought other than they are, even when they know it is not so.

It is a dangerous weakness. How much havoc has been wrought in human affairs by petty vanity; how much truth has been hidden because man stands in his own light.

"Why should the spirit of mortal be proud?" is a line in a poem of which Lincoln was fond. Why, indeed? Our modern psychology answers the question in a devastating way.

We are apt to think the vain man irritating, and at worst intolerable, in his coarseness and his obsession with himself. But he is really pathetic and his vanity futile.

If there is one thing he seems to be sure about, it is his superiority to others in the gifts to which he lays claim. But that is the tragedy—he is not sure at all. Our psychologists now tell us that it is all window-dressing after all. In fact, unconsciously to himself the vain man is trying to cover up his deficiencies. His diffidence is actually deeper than his self-assurance.

Shy and unhappy, he wants to be something that he cannot be—so he assumes the part and plays up to it. It is a little trick whereby he tries to cheat himself into believing that he possesses qualities he knows he does not possess.

Even if he convinces himself that the dramatized figure is the reality, his deeper self-knowledge, which seldom comes to the top in any of us, whispers another story.

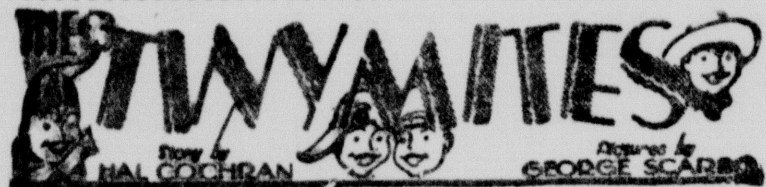

Yes, vanity is rooted in falsehood; one of us would be vain if we could see ourselves as we really are. Truth and vanity cannot live together in the same heart.

Humor is the deadly foe of vanity. No man would stage his little drama showing himself off, if he could see how funny he is actually showing himself up.

Vanity is a weed to be rooted out. Self-respect is a plant of which humility is the bloom and happiness the fruit.

The turtle was a funny sight. It paddled on with all its might. Wee Scouty looked back toward the shore, and then he sadly sighed.

"I'm sorry that we've left behind our friend the hunter. He was kind! We had no chance to thank him for this very thrilling ride."

"I hope we come back to that shore and join the fine, old man once more. Right now, however, we seem bound right down this winding stream."

"The current's getting rather fast. I wonder how long this will last." Then Doty said, "If we go faster, I just know I'll scream."

"Aw, don't be frightened," Copy cried. "Just sit still and enjoy this ride. The turtle's sure to get tired out. Then he will head for land."

"There's not a thing to spoil this trip. If we hang on so we won't slip. Perhaps it would be wisest, if we grab each other's hand."

By this time they moved on pell mell, and Windy shouted, "This is swell! You'd think that we were in a race. Gee, if we were, we'd win."

If there are any rocks nearby, to dodge them we will have to try. If this ol' turtle bumps one, it will throw us all right in."

Then came an unexpected trick. The turtle swung around real quick, and then he took a sudden dive and disappeared from sight.

This left the Tines swimming round where none of them could touch the ground. Of course, such a predicament filled everyone with fright.

"Here comes a log," we Scouty cried. "It's drifting right up by our side. Grab hold of it and hang on tight. Don't let it get away!"

"We'll help the two girls climb aboard." "Okay," another Tiny roared. The whole plan worked out fine, and Duncy loudly cried, "Hurrah!"

(The Tines are rescued in a strange manner in the next story.)

It is a chronic progressive disease of the skeleton in which peculiar things happen to the bony framework of the body. The bones become rarified, soft, and sometimes break spontaneously. Lately, however, great progress has been made in dealing with this condition. But perhaps what is most important, its etiology, or cause, has been clearly defined.

GIANT OUTFIELD OUTCLASSES TIGERS, CARDINALS

Ott, Moore, Watkins Better Hitters and Ball Hounds

New York, Sept. 26—(AP)—Getting down to cases on the current baseball whirling, there's no question that the New York Giants are more strongly fortified on the outfield ramps than either the St. Louis Cardinals, who are pursuing them this week, or the Detroit Tigers, with whom they hope to fight it out for the world series spoils next week.

For long or short hauls, no thoroughly unbiased baseball man would hesitate to take the combination of Mel Ott, Joe Moore and either George Watkins or Hank Leiber, in preference to the Cardinal outfield of Joe Medwick, Ernie Osratt and Jack Rothrock, or the flychasing trio of Rogers—Leon (Goose) Goslin, Ervin (Pete) Fox and Joyner (Jo-Jo) White.

The Giant trio is not so fast as the Tiger patrol and perhaps it doesn't harmonize so well under the showmen as the Cardinal song birds but it has what happens to be most important on the ball field—superior power at bat and greater all-around defensive skill.

Giants Have Edge
Combined, the New York outfield trio has an unofficial batting mark of about .320 for the season, exclusive of such heavy-hitting reserves as Frank (Lefty) O'Doul, pinch-batsman extraordinary, and Phil Weintraub. The margin over the Cardinal regulars is about .25 points, but the edge over the Tigers patrol is nearer 50 points in the aggregate.

A few weeks ago Terry thought Leiber, the celebrated first-ball hitter, was the answer to a prayer for a centerfielder who could combine ground-covering ability with a sturdy wallop at the plate. But the Giant pilot has weakened on Leiber the last few days and indications now are that if the Giants land in the world series, Watkins will do most of the heavy duty of exciting the fans and Leiber's hitting. Latest averages show Watkins at .245 and Leiber at .236, but either would be flanked by a pair of .340 batsmen in Moore and Ott.

Moore Trouble Starter
Moore, the celebrated first-ball hitter, is the leadoff man for the Giants and the kind of a fellow who likes to start trouble. Ott is in the cleanup role. "Mighty Mel" struck a number of telling blows against the Senators in the last world series and he has led the National League in runs-batted-in this year by a wide margin, his current total being 136. Both are great fly-catchers and equipped with two of the finest arms in the game.

Due to the mighty stickwork of their infield, the Tigers have been able to get along without a fence-busting outfield. This is a contrast with the old days when the great Ty Cobb alternated with such outfield slugger mates as Sam Crawford, Bobby Veach, Harry Heilmann and Heinie Manush.

The only real slugger in the current Tiger outfield is Goslin. The Goose was a star with the champion Washington Senators ten years ago but he justified Mickey Cochrane's confidence in him by staging a comeback and helping to drive Detroit into the lead. Lately, however, Goslin's batting mark has dropped from around .350 to less than .300, and the Goose hardly rates the all-around class of either Moore or Medwick, his Jeffie rival.

White's development as a 300 sticker is reputed to be due mostly to Goslin's coaching. The Tiger leadoff man is a fine ball-hawk and has an all-around edge on the basis of current figures, over his progressive rivals, Osratt of the

Morris Held Losses to Three Hits in Soft Ball Contest

The Airport Grill softball team won the second straight and final game from the Dixon All-Stars at the airport diamond last evening, 3 to 0. Morris, the Grill's pitcher, allowed but three hits while his team mates knocked Feltang nine. The game was full of excitement until the eighth inning, when with two down, Paddy McDonald lined a home run into right field, putting the game on ice.

A few moments after this picture was taken occurred the incident on which T. O. M. Sopwith based his protest of Rainbow's victory in the fourth race of the America's Cup series. CARDINALS ARE VERY MUCH BACK IN THE RUNNING

Have Chance to Tie or Nose Out the New York Giants

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR., Associated Press Sports Writer

The margin of one game—representing two victories by the Giants and two games which the Cardinals have not yet played—separated the National League pennant contenders today as they fought through a thrilling home-stretch duel.

The Cards split the difference right down the middle yesterday as they drove through to a 3 to 2 victory over Pittsburgh behind the eminent Jerome Herman (Dizzy Dean) while the Giants were suffering a 4 to 0 shutout from the Phillies, getting only four hits off young Curtis Davis.

The result put the Cards very much into the running again. Each has lost 57 games so far with 93 victories for the Giants and 91 for the Cards. St. Louis has five games left to play against New York's three. If both should sweep their remaining contests it would be a tie, and one defeat for either team before next Sunday may decide the struggle. In case of a deadlock the teams would have to play a special series, but the league's board of directors, which would make the arrangements, hasn't considered the subject yet, hoping apparently that a number of knotty problems about time and place won't be brought up.

Homer Prevents Shut-Out
The senior member of the Dean pitching firm limited the Pirates to six blows and it took a ninth-inning homer by Arky Vaughan to rob him of a shutout for his season's 28th victory.

While most of the other big-league clubs devoted their late games to trying out next year's prospects, the Boston club took two important steps yesterday. The Red Sox clinched a berth in the first division for the first time since 1918, by beating the Senators twice. They won the opener 1 to 0 on Wes Ferrell's five-hit pitching, then slammed out a 9 to 3 decision. The Braves took a 1½ game lead over Pittsburgh in their fourth-place struggle when a ninth inning rally netted three runs and a 9 to 6 victory over Brooklyn.

A home run by 19-year-old Phil Cavaretta off another player who was making his first big league start, Francis Wistert, gave the Cubs a 1 to 0 triumph over the Reds. The Yankees, with lefty Vito Tamulis pitching a seven-hit shutout in his first major league appearance, blanked the Athletics 5 to 0 with the aid of Lou Gehrig's 48th homer. The Browns, striving to recapture fifth place from the Athletics, used their regulars to defeat Cleveland 3 to 0 behind the veteran Irvin (Bump) Hadley.

Paul, younger member of Dean & Dean, Inc., was to step to the mound for the Cardinals today, determined to win his nineteenth victory of the season.

Yesterday's struggle, first at home for the Cards since Aug. 29, was won in the first inning when the St. Louisans bunched three hits with an error and a long fly to score their three runs.

The Browns will make their last

Pitcher, Almost Forgotten, Hurls St. Joe Into Flag

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

St. Joseph today held the 1934 Western League baseball championship, sailing into undisputed possession of its second consecutive pennant behind the no-hit, no-run pitching of Herman "Snooker" Drets, whom Manager Brucker almost left behind him when he entrusted for Davenport to end the playoff series.

The "Snooker", slender, 22-year-old product of the Omaha sandlots, has won only one game for his club since the middle of July, but he provided a portion of grief for Davenport's Frank Lamanski, the loop's leading pitcher, when he hurled the Saints to a 2 to 0 shutout over the Blue Sox at Davenport last night.

In winning the flag St. Joseph captured the first, second, fourth and seventh games of the playoff series.

FUN AND SPORTS MISSING FROM YACHT CONTEST

Sopwith, Angry Over Rainbow Tactics, is "Through"

Newport, R. I., Sept. 26—(AP)—Battered old America's Cup can go back to rest securely today in Tiffany's jewelry vaults on Fifth avenue, New York, though the reverberations and the bitterness of the Rainbow's victory probably will roll up and down the shores on both sides of the Atlantic for months to come.

Vowing that he never again would challenge for the hallowed trophy, a thoroughly angry English millionaire, Thomas Octave Murdock Sopwith, packed his duflie, stowed his protests and prepared to get out of here as rapidly as possible, leaving behind him his splendid blue bodied challenger Endeavour and a controversy as bitter, if not as explosive, as Lord Dunraven's battling bluff of 1895.

Race Came to Sorry End
The brilliant spectacle the yachts made came to a sorry end last night when Sopwith automatically wound up his challenge by withdrawing the protest he made of Rainbow's fourth and deciding victory, a protest entered chiefly in self defense.

Harold S. (Mike) Vanderbilt, skipper of the defender, had protested the race first, but won by the margin of 55 seconds, so the matter was dropped.

Thus Rainbow closed out the fifteenth series with four straight victories, all she needed, against two for the blue-hulled Englishman, the pair between them representing 2,500,000 sporting dollars.

Fun and Sport Gone
Over the victory hung the cloud of recriminations that have taken all the fun and port out of the thing since Sopwith filed his first protest after Saturday's race and was turned back by the committee.

Sopwith has been fuming since then, and he broke into open flame when he charged that exactly the same foul he alleged Saturday happened again before the start of yesterday's final drama.

Saturday, in the jockeying for the start, he and Vanderbilt tangled for the first time over the question of right of way. Sopwith gave way there, and again at the windward mark, where he was leading. He lost distance, and Vanderbilt came on to win the race by one minute and 15 seconds.

After thinking it over for a couple of hours, the Englishman hoisted his protest flag and wrote the race committee that if he hadn't given up his legal right on the ocean when he did, "serious collisions" would have followed. The committee tossed out his protest because he delayed so long putting up the flag.

Final Explosion

Then came the final explosion as the big sloops jockeyed for the start. Three times Vanderbilt chased Sopwith around in a circle as the Englishman tried to shake him off. Sopwith finally outsmarted the American by doubling quickly on his wake, breaking out a big genoa jib, and getting out of the pocket so swiftly that he was over the line over half a minute ahead of Rainbow.

But again there had been close quarter work as Vanderbilt slid under his stern, a few feet away, when he made the maneuver. In a few minutes, Vanderbilt was flying the protest flag, and then Sopwith ran his up.

Vanderbilt would only admit afterward that his protest had something to do with the start, but Sopwith was more specific.

"He protested," the Englishman said heatedly, "because he knew I had grounds for a protest and he wanted to get his in first. Having won the start, and having been beaten fairly in the race, I decided not to go ahead with my protest, although it was for precisely the same reason as Saturday."

"Furthermore, I definitely will not challenge again for the cup."

Possibilities in Red Hot National Loop Race

New York, Sept. 26—(AP)—Here are the possible ways in which the Giants and Cardinals may end their pennant race:

New York, Sept. 26—(AP)—Tony Canzoneri, former lightweight champion, will attempt to square accounts with Harry Dubinsky of Chicago, in a ten round bout at Ebbets Field tonight.

Columbus Scored Five in Last Inning to Save Game

Columbus, O., Sept. 26—(AP)—The Minneapolis Millers went into the final half of the ninth against Columbus with a 6 to 2 lead last night, but before two were out the Birds had chased five runs across the platter and evened the playoff series for the American Association flag at three-all.

The clubs will be back at it again tonight, with the winner getting the shot at Toronto for the little world's series. Pitching staffs of both clubs have been overworked in the heavy-hitting series, and both managers are dubious about their mound selections for tonight.

Manager Blades will send either Jumbo Elliott or "Bear Tracks" Greer to the hill, while Donnie Bush of the Millers, still upset by last night's neoument, is undecided.

"The Value of the PTA to the Parent and Child"—Mrs. LeRoy Miller.

Round Table conducted by the President, Mrs. Earl Fish was especially interesting as she had previously asked for suggestions concerning the programs for the ensuing year. A large number of suggestions were submitted. They will no doubt be of much help to the program committee.

Class Party

On Friday evening the Misses Bobby Kint and Jo Kelly entertained the Sunday school class of the Methodist church, taught by Mrs. Aureola Spangler with a Hobo Party.

The invitations, written on brown wrapping paper read: "A hobo party we will hold. Wear old clothes, as you are told. Bring your flashlight, too, we say. To make up for the light of day. Next Friday night on the dot of 7. We'll all start for Hobo Heaven—At Bobby Kint's we will meet. And forage for food which we'll eat; Bring a great big stick and a hankie red. To 'park' the food till we are fed."

Although it was rainy and a most unpleasant evening twelve enthusiastic members answered to the roll call. They were told to follow the trail which had been marked with white chalk. This led them to the George Spangler home where they were finally admitted to the basement which was dimly lighted with kerosene lanterns.

Games were played until nine o'clock when each hobo was called upon to demonstrate just how good a hobo he was. Marvin Brown, a real western hobo, was awarded the first prize and Kathryn Boom, just an ordinary hobo received the second prize.

At a late hour each one was given a paper sack containing a 'hand-out' Lemonade was served from a big brown jug.

All members present report a most enjoyable time. The next party will be in October and will be sponsored by the boys in the class.

Deposits Insured to $5,000

The Franklin Grove Bank has received from the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation at Washington, the official sign which hangs in that institution. The local bank is one of the more than 14,000 licensed banks in the U. S. which carry these licenses. Insured banks are able to offer protection to their depositors up to $5,000. Statistical studies have shown that this maximum fully protects more than 97 per cent of all depositors.

A statement by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. follows: "The purpose of the signs is to let depositors know which banks are insured. Heretofore, although 90 per cent of the licensed banks are insured, depositors have had an easy means of identifying them. If, by any unforeseen circumstances, an insured bank should suspend, the insurance Corporation would assign paying off the depositors just as soon as a receiver was appointed for the closed institution. The depositors would receive their money in a few days instead of waiting months or years as was the case in the former method of liquidation. This is not only a benefit to the depositors, but it saves the community from a terrific economic and social blow."

W. C. T. U. Notes

Lewis W. McIntire, city traffic engineer of Pittsburgh, Pa., lays blame for the nearly 100 per cent increase in automobile accidents in that city directly to increased drinking. Many pedestrians also were involved and Mr. McIntire is quoted by the press thus: "Once we said, 'If you must drink, don't drive.' Now we must carry it still further and say, 'If you must drink, don't walk.'"

At the recent convention of the International Association of Fire Chiefs, held at Milwaukee, Wis., R. B. Davis, head of the city fire department of Philadelphia, stated that charges covering all phases of misconduct, intoxication, absence without leave, insubordination, disobedience of orders, assault and battery, and neglect of duty among city employees were more than doubled in Philadelphia since the repeal, and gave comparative figures to support his statement.

MONTGOMERY WARD

Publisher Who is Sending Aid to Lee Farmers

FREDERICK A. MURPHY

Publisher of the Minneapolis Tribune, who at the invitation of the Telegraph, is sending his great agricultural editor, Charles F. Collisson, to Dixon next Saturday to deliver his lecture, "The Land of Milk and Money" free to farmers of Lee and adjoining counties at the Dixon high school gymnasium at 2 o'clock.

This meeting will be in charge of Prof. J. N. Weiss, instructor of vocational agriculture at the local high school, and will be absolutely free to every farmer in this and adjoining counties, every one of whom is invited. After hearing Mr. Collisson at a meeting some time ago the Telegraph realized that his message could do great things for agriculture in this part of Illinois, and at this paper's solicitation Mr. Murphy consented to release Mr. Collisson from his editorial duties that he might bring aid and helpful advice to farmers of northern Illinois.

Concerning Mr. Murphy and his productive campaign in the northwest the New York Evening Journal recently said editorially:

Instead of yelling their heads off about hard times, Minnesota farmers have been applying their brains to their problems—with the result that their income last year was 61 per cent. above their income for 1911. And this, mind you, in a year when the average farmer's income throughout the country was 1.03 per cent. BELOW his income for 1911.

It sounds like a miracle, but it was merely a case of common sense. As explained by Mr. Frederick A. Murphy, a farmer and newspaper publisher of the state, Minnesota raises a quarter of a billion dollars worth of feed crops annually and markets them "as butter and beef, as milk and cream and wool, the products of diversified live stock and dairy farming."

"Our barnyard flappers," Mr. Murphy continues, "alone give us a crop of eggs and poultry worth $80,000,000—four times our wheat crop."

"Our barnyard biddies make wheat look like chicken feed. They don't ask for any farm relief either—they go out in the nest and lay their own relief."

"As soon as they manufacture their merchandise they rise right up and advertise it."

Hence Minnesota prospers. Instead of putting all their eggs in one basket, as "one crop" farmers do, her farmers diversify their products, put their eggs in many baskets.

They have proved that it pays.

Famous Editor on Agriculture to Speak in City

CHAS. F. COLLISSON

Farm editor of the Minneapolis Tribune, whose writings and lectures on agriculture have become famous all over the country, will deliver a free lecture to farmers of Lee and adjoining counties at the Dixon High School gymnasium at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon, Sept. 29. Every farmer in this part of the state is invited and urged to attend this meeting which is sponsored by The Evening Telegraph, through the cooperation of the Minneapolis Tribune and the Dixon Board of Education.

Is Famous Authority

Editor Collisson's writings and addresses on agriculture have become famous all over the country.

"The interest never lags when Collisson gets into action," wrote one editor in the east. "He keeps everyone on the edge of his chair, for the fun comes fast and furious. He drives home his points with pungent wit and sparkling humor and anecdote, while never forgetting that he has a real serious message for everybody interested in America's greatest industry—farming."

Developed Plan

Since 1921 Mr. Collisson has been in charge of the Tribune's farm development movement, now famous as "the Minnesota plan," under the direction of the publisher, F. E. Murphy.

The latter is one of the outstanding and successful farmers and breeders of Holstein cattle in America. On his 6,000-acre Pemco farms, in the Red River Valley, near Breckenridge, Minn., he develops some of the finest world-record cows of the breed.

At Camp Glendalough, Battle Lake, Minn., his summer home, he also breeds ducks, pheasants and other game birds, besides raising about 7,500 turkeys every year. He is also a famous breeder of Percheron and fine saddle horses.

His newspaper, ever since he became publisher in 1921, has been devoted to the task of building up sound agriculture in the northwest. By feature stories, editorials on farm development, pure-bred sire selling campaigns, addresses by the publisher and his staff, thousands of wheat and single-crop farmers have been induced "I turn to dairying, livestock, and swine raising and alfalfa growing."

Presidents Interested

These efforts have attracted the attention of three presidents, Calvin Coolidge, Herbert Hoover and Franklin D. Roosevelt, all of whom have cooperated in the efforts to rebuild Northwestern farming.

Roosevelt was so impressed with the achievements of the publisher that he appointed him American delegate to the World Wheat Conference held in Geneva and London last year and in Rome last spring. Twenty-two nations signed up a wheat pact agreeing to limit their production and exports of wheat to certain definite quotas, so as to avoid disastrous surpluses and overproduction of wheat. London and Paris newspapers gave Editor Murphy a large share of the credit for selling foreign nations on the idea of cooperation.

Both the publisher and his farm editor, Collisson, have addressed hundreds of audiences of business men and farmers, all over the country. Thousands have heard of the progress made in the northwest in building up sound agriculture, under the Minnesota plan. Many large national conventions of business men have been addressed.

One tour of the east, addressing local advertising clubs, brought in to the Speakers Bureau of the Advertising Federation of America, the following comments from club officials:

Some Comments

"Mr. Collisson is a very forceful speaker, interesting, with some happy off-sides, and held his audience intensely throughout."

"He has a message which not only every national advertiser ought to hear, but his message should also be heard by the executives of all concerns who do a national business."

"Here is a man with a real message—a man in full command of his subject, a man who will hold your interest regardless of your interest in farm products."

"Mr. Collisson is the finest speaker the club has been privileged to hear in many months. I am pleased to say that the club now stands ready to get behind 'the cow, the sow and the little red hen' and push them to an even more

Fair Joy

More than 1,000 orphans will have been entertained when the series of weekly Happiness Day excursions is concluded.

glorious future than they now possess."

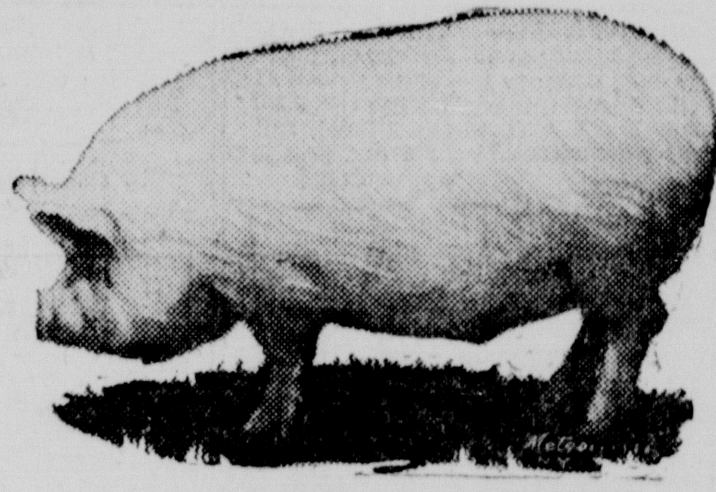

"I cannot tell you how tremendously we admired Mr. Collisson's presentation of 'The Land of Milk and Money.' I have not heard the club give such resounding and long lasting applause, in a long, long time."

"It was a privilege to see a master workman, a master craftsman and a master showman 'doing his stuff.'"

PLAYING IN THE SUN!

LITTLE AMERICA, ANTARCTICA, Sept. 11 (via Mackay Radio).—The return of daylight has had a marked influence on all of the 52 men in this camp and, I presume, a similar effect on Admiral Byrd and the three men with him at Bolling Advance Base. A new spirit pervades the entire group and the irritability and the sharp tempers developed during the long, gloomy winter night are disappearing. Each morning before the sun actually appeared, as the faint glow on the horizon increased it was greeted by a fanatical group of sun worshippers. Each day until August 22 the sun approached closer to the horizon until the group were rewarded finally by a glimpse of its shining edge appearing just over back of Bradley the distant ice beach, N. J., one barrier. The day of our aviators, light was only daylight by courtesy. It was grey and eerie on the ice but it was daylight nevertheless and a welcome change from the impenetrable blackness of the Antarctic night.

With the advent of daylight the weather seemed to get colder and the men piled on more and more clothing, especially socks. Our winter shoes, all right for indoors, were replaced by fur mukluks and the heavy leather helmets replaced the woolen helmets we had been wearing. And, as the boys began to play around or work outside, numerous cases of frostbitten noses and toes and fingers began to appear. Those of us who were working outdoors have had to watch each other closely to check the tell-tale white patches that indicate freezing faces and must be attended to instantly by rubbing snow on them and getting out of the extreme cold for a while. A marked change also occurred in our living conditions. During the winter night it was our habit to foregather in the living quarters after meals and argue every question under the sun day and night. The coal stoves were red hot and the arguments even hotter. Now all this is changed. We have had an opportunity to dig out the autogiro and Bill McCormack, of Lansdowne, Pa., has taken several wonderful altitude flights in it to observe weather conditions. To our astonishment he reports that the Ross Sea is entirely free of ice below.

I have been living for the past few months in the main administration building in an upper bunk over Steve Corey, of Winchester, Mass., our supply officer. The associations and the arguments here have been a liberal education to me—an unparalleled post-graduate course supplementing my work at Harvard. I have acquired great self-confidence because I have learned to do so many things. I can now do anything from observing and checking meteors to properly folding parachutes, adjusting magnets or butchering a seal—not forgetting my really great proficiency as a plain and fancy welder of a snow shovel. That is one art I am going to try to forget the minute I get home.

Up where you are colleagues are re-opening. Already almost 400 in the club classes have enrolled in our club, and thousands of other people interested in aviation, exploration, and adventure. If you haven't joined yet now is a grand time. Member ship, big working map of the South Polar region and membership card are all free. Simply send a clearly self-addressed stamped envelope to our American headquarters at Lansdowne, Pa., has taken several wonderful altitude flights in it to observe weather conditions. To our astonishment he reports that the Ross Sea is entirely free of ice below.

ZUPPKE COMBS LINE TO FIND SUITABLE END

Illinois Coach Has Reversed Search of Last Season

Champaign, Ill. Sept. 26.—(AP)—Bob Zupke has started backtracking from his procedure of the last few years when he converted all of his end candidates into line-men. Now he is surveying his guards and tackles for possible end candidates.

The graduation of Ivan Schustek and Fred Frink left "Zup" without an experienced flankman, and the Illinois mentor has not been pleased with the work of this year's aspirants to the wing positions. The first move to shift men came yesterday when Arvo Antilla and Stan Hutson were given a chance at the positions. Antilla won his letter as a tackle last year and has been playing with the first team this year as a tackle. He was originally an end, however, and played the position during his high school career at Whiting, Ind. and as a freshman. He was shifted to tackle because he was not considered fast enough for a wing post. His speed has not improved, but he has shown himself adept at snaring passes. Stan Hutson, listed as a center but experienced at both center and guard, was also given a chance at end yesterday. Hutson, a sophomore from Sesser, Ill., has all of the physical qualifications but was new to the job.

DECEPTION TO BE GROUND WORK OF OHIO STATE

New Coach Will Show Big Ten a Lot of New Formations

Columbus, O., Sept. 26.—(AP)—It's a long jump from instructing a class of girls in the gentle art of aesthetic dancing to coaching a squad of gridirons in one of the biggest universities in the country but Francis A. Schmidt, new mentor at Ohio State, has made the leap.

Very definitely "on the spot" in what the experts rate as one of the toughest coaching jobs in America is Schmidt, but he isn't worrying. He has a lot of good material, a batch of baffling plays which are new in the Big Ten, and a three-year contract.

Rely On Deception Deception will play the heavy part in Ohio's attack this year, and observers at workouts say they will not be surprised if the umpire suddenly turns into a ball-carrier, or if the pigskin disappears, when the Buckeyes start their drive. Multiple passes in the backfield, laterals, long and short forwards, hidden-ball tricks and the best kicker on the conference—these are the things Schmidt is building his offense around.

He has a veteran backfield in Kabealo, the punter; Smith, the runner and passer; Keekin, blocker and ball-toter; and Pincura, quarterback, who can kick, pass, run or block as the occasion demands. The line is not so well set, Regis Monahan being the lone regular back in the forward wall. Monahan a guard is captain of the team. Schmidt taught a class of girls to trip the light fantastic. He is filling the shoes left vacant by Sam Williamson, who refused to take more criticism from the fans after losing two in a row to Michigan—his lone losses in two years—and resigned.

WESTERN POLO PLAYERS MIS- TAKE BEAT HIM

Shot Ball Over His Own Goal: Eastern Team Victorious

New York, Sept. 26.—(AP)—Thanks to an unintentional goal shot through his own uprights by Elmer J. Boeske, Jr., 10-goal Californian star and back on the western team, the east's polo forces celebrated today the recovery of intersectional polo honors for 1934. As the climax to two sensation-al close matches on the Meadow Brook club's international field, the east squeezed out a 14-13 decision yesterday for its second straight and deciding victory. The margin of triumph, as it turned out, was furnished at the very start of the game when Boeske, in attempting to clear the ball away from in front of his own goal, accidentally drove it squarely between the posts for the east's first point.

From the stands, it looked as though the lanky Californian had become confused, following a brisk scrimmage, and wallowed the ball with the mistaken idea he was aiming at the eastern goal. He explained afterward after voicing his chagrin to his teammates, that he was riding so swiftly he did not set himself properly for the shot and pushed it the wrong way.

Whether or not this piece of bad luck upset the western team, the east nevertheless galloped up and down the field, piling up a five-goal lead through the first three periods before the west rallied and made a dog-fight of it. With Boeske and Cecil Smith, the 10-goal Texan playing sensationally, the west three times came within one goal of tying the score in the last period.

BEACH CLUB GIRL

BEGIN HERE TODAY
BOOTS RAEBURN, 18, elopes with RUSS LUND, swimming instructor. When he goes to Florida, promising to send for her later, she goes to work in a department store.

Russ does not write. Months pass and then comes word that he has been killed in a motorboat accident.

Boots meets DENIS FENWAY, young author, and EDWARD VAN SCIVER, wealthy and socially prominent. She is in love with Denis and jealous of beautiful KAY CHILLINGFORD.

Boots gets a job in a book store and goes home to live in order to help her parents financially. On Christmas Eve Denis calls, but Boots tells herself she must forget him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XLIII

Boots awakened in the gray Christmas dawn, having slept badly, in snatches and tormented by dreams. Presently a half-hearted sun came through the clouds and she walked to church beside Miss Florida, along the frost-rimmed pavements. The well-worn family sedan had collapsed in line of duty some months before. The Raeburns walked now, whatever their destination.

It was really the first time since Boots' return that she had ventured out into the village community life. Several people nodded to her cordially. After the service Isabel whispered swiftly, "You're coming to my tea this afternoon, without fail!"

"I don't know. I'm expecting a caller from town."

Isabel dimpled significantly. "Bring him along. I'm dying to meet him." She squeezed her friend's arm with the old warm pressure. "I've heard about your young man," she said with archness.

Boots said perhaps she would come. She didn't know, really, what Edward's plans would be. He was dining with the family and would drive out later. Edward was a solid, satisfying fact to have in one's life. He was all reliability and honest worth.

When he did arrive, smiling and big and hearty, with his resounding knee and his own particular accent of Russian leather and heather-soaked tweeds, Boots mentioned Isabel's party. Edward was interested. Yes, he'd like to go, he said. Not for long, though, because he wanted to have his girl to himself. He had a lot of things to talk to her about.

"These are too lovely," she told him, touching the pearls with a caressing finger. She had already thanked him for them. Edward's laugh boomed out reassuringly. She should have finer things than those and very soon, too, he assured her.

"Seen Denis?" he asked after a moment. She steadied herself to reply.

"Yes. He dropped in last night."

"How's the old boy?"

"Oh, all right, I guess." Why must he remind her of Denis at this moment? But he was finished with that topic, for the time, at least. It was of their plans he wished to speak. Could she be ready by January 1st? There was a ship sailing then—just the trip he had planned for her.

Boots laced her slim fingers, unlocked them. When she looked up, she was smiling. This was the best way out of her difficulties, surely. And the sooner it was done the better!

Whether or not this piece of bad luck upset the western team, the east nevertheless galloped up and down the field, piling up a five-goal lead through the first three periods before the west rallied and made a dog-fight of it. With Boeske and Cecil Smith, the 10-goal Texan playing sensationally, the west three times came within one goal of tying the score in the last period.

West Ferrell, Red Sox—Ferrell pitched five hit shutout against Senators.
Guy Bush, Cubs—Blanked Reds with four hits, fanning eight.

Only 19 of 1,800 Civil War Veterans Left in Quincy Home

Springfield, Ill. Sept. 26.—(AP)—At the state Soldiers and Sailors Home at Quincy, where 1,800 Civil War veterans lived thirty years ago, only nineteen are left. There are 619 persons in the institution, including 300 veterans of the World War and 96 widows and wives and 40 daughters of Civil War soldiers.

"All right. The seventh." "You darling!" Edward was rarely demonstrative but today his voice trembled. He took her between thumb and forefinger, tilting it gently.

"You won't be sorry," he told her. "We'll go places and do things. I'll be so proud of you."

HER mother came in and there were effusive thanks for the game and the jellies and the fruit cake and the avocados. Boots, sitting apart, admired his manner with the older woman, his quiet deference.

"He's good. He's kind," she assured herself. "What more does any girl want?"

It would be a haven for her—this safe, wise, honorable marriage. Sylvia would never look past her uneasily again, nor would Boots' mother worry over bills. The girl clung to these thoughts. They steadied her.

Presently she and Edward went for a walk in the chilly air. The early morning promise of sun had faded and a slow fog was seeping in from the shore. The horns blew unceasingly.

"Funny Christmas weather!" Boots shivered in her coat, huddling the fur collar closer under her chin. She had an indefinable sense of unrest. Her nerves were stretched at high tension.

"You're cold." Edward gave her a concerned look. "Better take your back." He had one big, gloved hand under her elbow, piloting her. The sidewalks were filmed with the faintly oily dampness the fog always brought. They stopped at an intersection and a car zoomed past them with eerie quiet in the gray swirl of mist blowing in from the Sound.

"This—is this terrible," the girl said on a note of hysterical laughter. "I never saw such fog. And on this, of all days."

People loomed suddenly close to them as they crossed. A father steered two red-capped and mittened children, chattering excitedly. "Good thing we didn't drive," Edward muttered. "You can't even see the turns." A headlight flashed close to them and was instantly swallowed up in the mist.

PRESENTLY, Boots thought, chattering with relief, that would turn in at Isabel's doorway. All this darkness and dimness would be swallowed up in the warmth of candlelight and firelight. There would be reassuring laughter and brimming cups.

"I don't know why I mind this so," she said on a shaken note, "but I do. It makes me terribly nervous."

"Careful there!" She hadn't even seen the curb. Houses, shrubs, fences, gates—all were swallowed up in the horrible, all-enveloping grayness and blankness. She heard the shrill sound of brakes; saw Edward's arm flung up to shield her. It seemed then that she was slipping, slipping, slipping downward.

When she came to she was on a dark couch in a brightly lighted room. There were murmuring voices somewhere nearby. A thin, alert man in spectacles came to stand over her.

"All right now?" Boots' head ached but she could move her arms, her legs. She tried to struggle to her feet.

"Better take it easy. You're all right but you've had a nasty shock."

She said faintly, "Edward?" "The young man's a bit knocked up," the doctor told her cheerfully. "We've taken him down to the hospital for X-rays. I'm Dr. La Farge and you're in my office in the Plantain Apartments. I'll have you taken home after a while when you're sure you've lost that fuzzy feeling."

She closed her eyes. For the moment she was too shaken to question him further. Just what "knocked up" might mean, uttered in that cheerful tone, she did not dare to ask. Doctors were notably optimistic when discussing such matters with another patient.

She lay back, spent. Edward was hurt and she herself badly shaken, although the doctor assured her there were no bones broken. Mr. Van Sciver, he had added, shading his voice to the proper note of respect for that golden name, had thrown himself in front of Boots. His hip appeared to have sustained a slight fracture, although the car had not passed over him.

Boots shuddered. "My mother—no one has telephoned her. I hope!" she begged.

Mr. Van Sciver had been conciliatory, she was told. He had insisted that Dr. La Farge take charge. Mr. Van Sciver had said that Mrs. Raeburn was not to be alarmed and had instructed her to telephone a friend of his—Mr. Fenway, said the doctor, glancing at a pencilled memorandum in his hand. Mr. Fenway would be here directly.

DENIS came in a moment later. The color came up in Boots' face.

"Where's Edward?"

"At the New Martin Hospital." "He told him simply. 'He—he was very brave, Denis. He saved my life.'"

He was watching her intently. "He—Edward and I are going to be married soon after the first of the year," she went on rapidly. "I—I thought I ought to tell you."

There was a brief silence. "Thanks. I'm glad to know it. It—it simplifies things, somehow." She did not glance his way nor ask him what he meant.

"So will you, after you take me home, go down to the hospital and see exactly how things are? See what he needs and then let his people know? His mother—his mother will be simply furious. Boots finished, tears standing at last in her eyes. "She's not—particularly wild about me anyhow, although she's been decent enough. But she will be bound to think it's all my fault."

"Of course I'll go," Denis said, answering the first part of her sentence and politely ignoring the second. "Think you can stand?"

She tried it, giddily. Dr. La Farge's mirror showed a blue bruise on her forehead. "I'm a—pruise sight for Christmas."

Much later, in her own room, with the lamps lighted and Miss Florida fussing over her gently with hot water bottles and milk toast, Boots recalled the look Denis had given her at that moment. He called it and put it quickly away. It was Edward she must think of now. A hip fracture, the X-rays showed. Edward was resting comfortably but it would be a full six weeks before he would walk again. (To Be Continued)

KID INJURY IS MOVING PLACES IN THE BIG TEN

Now Indiana Loses a Star Back When He
Cracks an Ankle

Chicago, Sept. 26.—(AP)—Old kid injury has battered out another of the Big Ten's prize backs, Vernon Huffman of Indiana, out of action for an indefinite period.

The kid's first real blow was a fractured ankle for Bill Renner, Michigan's No. 1 quarterback and forward passer. Yesterday he took out Huffman, best of Bo McMillin's backs. Huffman, a 194-pounder who was expected to do the bulk of the Hoosier passing and was looked on as the successor to Bob Jones in the punting department, suffered a cracked ankle when he was tackled after tossing a long pass. A few minutes previously, George Stevenson, veteran guard, was carried from the field with a hip injury.

Wildcats Lose Man The Hoosiers were on public display for the first time of the season and smacked the freshmen, 16 to 0, in a practice game. Northwestern also suffered a loss when Leon Fuller, second string center, was taken to the hospital suffering from appendicitis. The Wildcats were let off easy because of the warm weather.

Harry Kipke continued to work Matt Patanelli, 201-pound end, as a blocking halfback in an effort to patch up the Michigan backfield. His backfield yesterday had Russ Oliver at quarter in place of Bill Renner, with Patanelli and Howard Triplehorn at the halves, and Steve Remais at full.

Francis (Pug) Lund, Minnesota's great halfback, was out of practice suffering from a severe cold, but is expected back in time to play in the opener with North Dakota State Saturday. Milt Bruhn, veteran Gopher guard, also was out with a knee injury.

Solemn Not Pleased Iowa's scrimmage against the freshmen was anything but pleasing to Ossie Solem. The line play was ragged and the varsity managed to complete only one forward pass against the yearlings. Dick Crayne and Oze Simmons, however, got away for some good gains. The Chicago offense showed some improvement but the Maroons were not as spirited as Coach Clark Shaughnessy wished.

At Purdue, Noble Kizer was somewhat disappointed in a search among the third and fourth teams for capable line reserves, but saw some fine ball-carrying by Toddy Anderson, George Baker, Lowell Decker and Bill Riblett. Dr. Clarence W. Spears, put four Wisconsin eleven through a long scrimmage.

A couple of sophomores, Frank Boucher and John Bettridge, stood out in Ohio State's scrimmage against the reserves. Each ran for a touchdown, with Boucher covering 60 yards in his dash. Tippy Dye, 134-pound quarterback, also looked good.

Dead Man Linked In Kidnap Probe

A man dead for six months, shown here in an exclusive photo, taken two years ago, is cast in a leading mystery role in the Lindbergh kidnapping case. He was Isidor Fisch, reputed partner of Bruno Richard Hauptmann in a fur business and the man from whom the kidnapping suspect declares he received the $12,750 ransom found in his garage.

Denies Dead Man Kidnaping Link

Posing in happy mood with a friend, in this exclusive picture taken two years ago, is Isidor Fisch, right, dead for six months, around whom mystery centers in the Lindbergh kidnapping case. Bruno Richard Hauptmann, imprisoned suspect, claims Fisch gave him the $12,750 ransom found in Hauptmann's garage, when Fisch went to Germany, where he died last March. Henry Uhlig, left, a friend of both men, denies this, declaring that Fisch actually was in debt to Hauptmann and had little money.

"He couldn't have been a kidnaper, he loves little Manfred so," Mrs. Anna Hauptmann asserted in defense of her husband who is held in connection with the Lindbergh kidnapping. Coach Dominetta's Amboy township high eleven won from Buda 40-0 in the first game of the season Friday afternoon. Due to the heavy rains the game was played at the church ball field north of town. Buda's team was much smaller than the local outfit and proved to be very poor opposition.

The Amboyites were able to score easily and toward the end of the second half many of the second string players were given a chance to play. It is expected that Amboy will meet much stiffer competition when they journey to Polo for the first conference game of the season on October 6. Polo has eight stars from last year's squad.

Last of Illinois' Relief Bond Issue Sold to Chicagoans

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 26.—(AP)—Sale of the last $6,000,000 of unemployment relief bond issue notes at a rate of approximately 3 1/2 per cent was announced Tuesday.

A syndicate of the five loop banks in Chicago bought the five per cent revenue notes for $6,019,020, the premium reducing the financing cost to slightly more than three per cent.

The sale disposed of the $28,500,000 in revenue notes available under the $30,000,000 bond issue program, which will be submitted to a November referendum.

The $28,500,000 in notes will be retired by the $30,000,000 bond issue, to be repaid by the counties and municipalities through gas tax diversion, if the referendum carries.

In August the state rejected a 3 1/2 per cent bid on $5,000,000 of the notes, contending the rate was too high, and arranged for the state to do its own financing on half the amount at two per cent.

Does the Shoe Fit the Footprint?

One of the important tests that must be made to trace any possible link between Bruno Hauptmann and the actual kidnapping of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., is that of fitting his shoes to the footprints found at the foot of the ladder down which the baby was carried from the nursery of the Lindbergh home in Hopewell, N. J. At left is a picture of the footprint, outlined in white; at right is a picture of Hauptmann's foot.

The five men, police said, were traveling at high speed and were unable to round a curve on the viaduct over the Michigan Central railroad tracks, a mile and a half east of here. Byrg and Wesley were taken to a hospital, and a police search started for the others. No toilet is complete without a box of Heals.
